We have the reputation of doing as we advertise, and the sale which we are now conducting is an object lesson in the kind of retailing which has made this store popular with the people of Brainerd and vicinity. We want every one of our customers to obtain their share of the good values which we are distributing, a partial list of which is given below.

WHERE'S the LEAK?

I can find it and stop the damage. What I'll charge for the work will be economy, not expense. Don't be afraid I'll refuse a small job, and don't be afraid I can't do a good one.

day morning, Sept. 5th, and all those

That Bicycle Ordinance.

Mayor Koop requests the DISPATCH to inform the public that commencing August 1st the bicycle ordinance recently passed by the council will be strictly enforced by the police as to violations and that all bicycle riders are hereby warned to use the paths instead of the sidewalks. The mayor has been informed by the superintendent of path construction that the paths are now ready for use in every part of the city where necessary.

Boy, Hammer, Cartridge.

The above combination resulted very disastrously to a ten-year-old lad by the name of Kalland on Saturday afternoon last. The boy had in his possession a Krag-Jorgenson cartridge and thinking it would be the proper thing to explode it he put the cartridge on a block of wood and with a nail on the cap he hammered away with the usual result in such cases. The bullet went through his right hand and struck his leg near the knee ranging upward and lodged somewhere near the thigh where it still remains. No serious result is expected, but it is a great wonder that the boy was not killed outright.

Red Men Coming.

The Great Council of Minnesota, Independent Order of Red Men, will meet in annual session in this city on Monday, August 21st, continuing for three days. The local lodge is making extensive preparations to entertain their visiting brethren and have appointed an entertainment committee consisting of Geo. Sargent, D. M. Clark, J. F. McGinnis, J. P. Saunders and J. P. Wallace.
The grand parade will take place at 2 p. m. Tuesday and cash prizes of $100 and $50 will be given the tribes having the largest and second largest number of men in line. A dance will probably be given on Tuesday evening. The Past Sachem's banquet will take place on Monday evening at Gardner hall.

A Frightful Accident.

A terrible accident occurred at the Northern Pacific planing mill on Monday afternoon by which John Wordin lost his left arm. Mr. Wor-din, who is a tinner, was engaged in arranging a blow pipe over a planing machine. The job was about completed when Wordin's left hand was caught in the knives and his arm nearly to the elbow was pulled into the machine and literally chopped to pieces before he could be extricated from his perilous position.
A switch engine was called and the injured man was conveyed to the Sanitarium where his injuries were attended to, the arm being amputated at the elbow. Mr. Wordin has been an employee at the shops for five or six years and lives on Pine street
in Southeast Brainerd.

Drowned in the River.

On Monday evening, Mabel Tift, the 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tift, was drowned in the river a short distance above French rapids. The girl had gone down to the river with two smaller children for a pail of water for the house and stepped out onto a log, which was the usual place where the water for the family use was obtained, and as she stooped over to dip
the water up she lost her balance and fell into the river and disappeared from view, the river being very deep and swift at that point. The smaller children ran to the house and gave the alarm but assistance reached the scene too late. The body was recovered Tuesday morning a short distance below where the accident occurred in 18 feet of water.
The body was brought to this city for burial, the funeral being held from the Episcopal church Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Kite officiating.

The Child Was Lost.

On Sunday last Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Keleher with their children spent the day at Gull Lake, and in the afternoon were on the north shore enjoying the gentle breezes and warm sunshine, the little ones
having the freedom of the beach.
In some way the little 3-year old boy became separated from the other children and could not be found. At dark the little one had not been located, and Mr. and Mrs.
Keleher were nearly frantic. A searching party was organized and the woods for miles around were traversed during the night with lanterns. At about 6:30 in the morning Mr. Keleher found the boy sitting on a tamarack log and crying lustily and when he spied his father he exclaimed "Papa, what made you go off and leave me!"
The boy had wandered around over a good deal of country, and had been into a swamp, and the searching party had been within a few feet of him several times but he was probably asleep and did not hear their cries. He was badly bitten by mosquitoes, but otherwise did not appear to have suffered much from his experience.

Balloon Man Drowned.

Edwin M. East was drowned in Leech Lake on Wednesday evening while making a balloon ascension and parachute leap. Mr. East was well known in this city, having been here since the first of July with Prof. and Mrs. C. D. Jenkins who gave exhibitions at the Swartz Driving Park on the 4th. He was a tight-rope walker and being stranded in the city he was making use of his time in getting the balloon business down to a science and made his first trip into the air in this city on Monday, July 17th. When the Library Association gave their excursion to Bemidji on July 25th Prof. Jenkins and Mr. East went there expecting to give an exhibition, but through some misunderstanding it did not come off, and the balloonists stayed there. A few days later East made an ascension and came down in Bemidji lake but was rescued. The balloon party finally made their way to Walker and on Wednesday evening Mr. East made his third trip skyward and which cost him his life. The balloon was inflated and started up at a late hour, about 8:30 o'clock, what little breeze there was was blowing off the lake but when the aeronaut had reached a distance of 800 or 1,000 feet he struck a current which carried him out over the south arm of the lake and he fell into the water and his body has not been recovered. East's home is at Salt Lake City.

Bane's Kansas City Beef is the Talk of the Town.

Mr. Brown: Say, Jones, you are looking mighty fine it seems to me, picking right up in flesh. I actually believe you weigh 15 pounds more than you did a month ago.

Mr. Jones: Well, the fact is, Brown, my wife has made a change in the diet at our house and uses only Kansas City Beef in the way of meat, and you can't imagine what an agreeable change it is.
Braces a fellow right up. You better drop into E. C. Bane's market on Sixth street, and give them an order, and I'll guarantee you will use no other.

Perhaps some ingenious persons will regard it as practical justice that M. Bertillon's ridiculous rulings in the Dreyfus case led to his loss of position in the anthropometrical department.

"The West" is a term of growing elasticity. According to a California paper, the West is to be measured from Chicago to Luzon. Lowell spoke of "the vague Orient of 'Down East.'" There is also a vague Occident of "Out West."

Gen. Corbin has issued an order still more completely tightening the censorship of the press in regard to war news. If the British government should put in practice as strict rules limiting the transmission of war news from Egypt or India as are in force against press dispatches from Manila to the United States, it would cause a row in the house of commons in a day.

Kaiser Wilhelm moves steadily along, doing sensational things from day to day, and yet showing a remarkable quantity of good judgment and firm common sense. His latest move was to write a manly and friendly letter to President Loubet of France, and Loubet, another man of pronounced sense, wrote back in the same friendly strain. Peace may not be all a dream when men like Wilhelm and Loubet exchange well-intended courtesies.

A friend of Youth's Companion calls attention to some of the many valuable properties of lemon juice. It has been shown that any acid is fatal to the cholera bacillus, and one of the best means of avoiding the disease by one in the midst of an epidemic is to acidulate the drinking water with lemon or lime juice or citric acid. Lemonade is regarded by many physicians as very useful in the treatment of influenza, and a Brazilian physician has recently asserted that citric acid is an almost infallible remedy in the prevention and cure of whooping-cough. The efficacy of lime juice as a preventive of scurvy is well known, and many other are the remedial uses of this pleasant and health-giving acid of the citrus fruits.

An official circular, issued by the governor of Arizona, warns intending investors in mining claims, alleged to exist in that territory, against the schemes of unprincipled stock jobbers. Their purpose is to sell large amounts of stock in the eastern states, and the late boom in copper, together with the great productiveness of some of the Arizona copper mines, may make it possible for these "promoters" to succeed. Corporations, the governor asserts, have been formed with outrageous capitalization, based upon prospects which are either fallacious or grossly exaggerated, and the stock is sold upon misrepresentations which almost amount to obtaining money under false pretenses. The governor regrets being compelled to make such announcements, but was constrained thereto "in the interest of honest mining, to save investors from loss, and to protect the character of Arizona."

A visitor to the Canadian Northwest came across a group of Galician girls who were chattering to each other in their own language. "You are Galicians, are you not?" said the looker-on. "No, sir," was the reply, "we Canadians." The response meant much. The thorough identification indicated by it gladdened the listener. "We are Americans," acceptable immigrants say in due time, and with proper national feeling. Immigrants whose sole purpose is to profit by us, not to be one with us, are not needed.

FIGHTING THE FEVER

MEASURES TAKEN TO PREVENT SPREAD OF YELLOW JACK.

Latest Reports Show a Total of Thirty-seven Cases and Seven Deaths at Hampton, Va.—Disease Thus Far Has Been Confined to the Soldiers' Home—Dr. Wasdin, of the Marine Hospital Service, Makes a Report on the Existing Conditions and the Origin of the Outbreak.

Washington, Aug. 2.—The latest official advices received show a total of thirty-seven cases and seven deaths from yellow fever at the soldiers' home at Hampton, Va. One new case occurred at the home yesterday. Thus far the disease has been confined to the home, but all surrounding towns are excited and a vigorous quarantine is being maintained. Dr. Wasdin, of the marine hospital service, is in charge at Hampton and is working in co-operation with the local board of health. He has strengthened the cordons about the town of Phoebus, which he reports in very bad sanitary condition. The fact that only one new case appeared yesterday is encouraging to the officials here, who are taking every measure to prevent a spread of the disease. They feel that the fact that the infected territory is in the hands of the government and under one management will be of great value in dealing with the scourge and enable better measures to be taken than were it in some commercial place.

Messages were received by Dr. Wyman from quarantine officers throughout the United States asking whether they shall impose a maritime quarantine against Norfolk. He replied that there appears to be no necessity for such restriction in the case of Norfolk or Newport News. Dr. Wasdin's official report of existing conditions at the soldiers' home reached Dr. Wyman yesterday. It is dated Sunday, and notes the fact that the doctor has examined all cases thoroughly. The physician's story of the outbreak is as follows:

"Early in July an old soldier entered the home for a short rest and soon afterward appeared at the dispensary, where he informed the surgeon in charge that he was from Santiago, via a transport for the North; that he started for San Francisco to go to Manila, beat his way to the home and entered with his baggage. He complained of dumb chills and was treated accordingly. He remained in the home until a short time ago, when he disappeared. From this as a possible cause the outbreak is as follows:

"Preceding Friday, the 21st ult., there had been noticed nothing of a suspicious nature. The weekly death rate is as usual. But on the 21st and 22d there became ill during the night with sharp or less chill or high fever, some ten inmates, men of usually good health. This peculiar occurrence occasioned no alarm until about Thursday, 27th, when a death occurred, the patient turning yellow some time prior to death. On or about the same date another died without attracting particular attention. He also turned quite yellow. Autopsies were held on both by the resident pathologist. It was then or a little later that a telegram was sent you asking for an expert. I found there were 3,500 inmates and that thirty-five had been taken ill since the 21st."

Dr. Wasdin said he withheld a positive diagnosis in his previous communication because of the positive assertion of Dr. Vickery that there had been no communication between the inmates and any soldiers returning from Cuba since the beginning of the year. With the discovery of the old soldier's movements Dr. Wasdin says there can be no doubt as to the disease or cause. Dr. Wasdin says:

"I have advised Maj. Vickery to dis-infect the dormitories at once, putting the men in tents meantime. The grounds are closed. There has been a very free intercommunication between the inmates and people of Phoebus, a public house near the grounds being freely visited until last night. I have suggested to Dr. Pettus to meet one or more of the local boards of Phoebus, and, informing them of the state of affairs, ask their co-operation in watching the village. These inmates also understand it—do not mingle with people outside of the villages. From this fact it would seem possible to confine it to the home."

Some data furnished by the surgeon general shows the prompt manner in which the authorities have taken the matter in hand.

Business at Phoebus, adjoining the soldiers' home, is suspended. It is difficult to obtain information from the home. The entrance and all points from which escape is possible are guarded. Late yesterday afternoon a self-appointed guard of fifteen Hamptonians with Winchester went to the home to assist in enforcing the quarantine regulations. Chesapeake & Ohio trains have discontinued their service to the city.

To Prevent Its Spread.

Washington, Aug. 2.—Surgeon General Wyman, of the marine hospital service, had a conference with Secretary Gage on the yellow fever situation at Hampton, Va. GEN. MILES' POSITION.

It Will Be Much Pleasanter Under Mr. Root.

Washington, Aug. 2.—Gen. Miles has every reason to believe that he will now be something more than commanding general in name only. It has been stated that Gen. Miles is preparing his case and that when the new secretary takes office to-day he proposes to demand his rights. This is not true. He simply intends to resume his former duties under the regulations. In this way it will devolve upon Secretary Root to raise any question concerning Gen. Miles' duties and responsibilities, and not the general. Gen. Miles does not expect anything but harmony, nor does Mr. Root. Mr. McKinley insists upon it. At the conference between the president and Gen. Miles the day before Alger resigned, the desirability of more pleasant relations between the major general commanding and the head of the war department was emphasized, and assurances were given that Gen. Miles would be given better treatment in the future.

The murder was without doubt the result of Miss Morrell's refusal of his attention.

Webb City, Mo., Aug. 2.—Mrs. J. P. Thornton was arrested here yesterday on a warrant charging her with killing her husband, a well known mining engineer, whose body was found in a lot of weeds southwest of this place with his head nearly severed from his body. THREE MORE CASES

YELLOW FEVER OUTBREAK BECOMES SERIOUS.

One More Death Is Reported at the Soldiers' Home, Making Up to Date Forty Cases in All Which Have Occurred at the Home, of Which Eight Have Proved Fatal—Little Doubt of Fever Infection at Phoebus—Rigid Quarantine Precautions Are Taken.

Washington, Aug. 3.—"Three new cases of yellow fever in the soldiers' home at Hampton and one death" is the official report received by Surgeon General Wyman from Dr. Wasdin, the yellow fever expert on duty at the institution. Added to Dr. Wasdin's figures sent to Dr. Wyman Monday, this makes up to date forty cases in all which have occurred at the home, of which eight have proved fatal. Surgeon White telegraphed Dr. Wyman that, in his opinion, there was little doubt that there had been some fever infection in the neighboring village of Phoebus, but the surgeon general said this dispatch had not been followed by any evidence of a positive case at the place. Should the fever develop there, however, no surprise will be felt in view of the proximity of the place to the soldiers' home and the mixing of the inmates of the institution with the people of Phoebus. Its appearance at Phoebus, Dr. Wyman thinks, under these circumstances, would be simply a coincidence. The opinion was expressed that the situation still continues encouraging inasmuch as the fever continues in its original bounds. None of the neighboring towns have reported infection or suspicious cases. The people for miles around the home are very much alarmed but are quiet. No restrictions have been placed on the departure of the several hundred visitors at Old Point Comfort, but Dr. Pettus, who has absolute charge of affairs there, will exercise careful supervision of those who may leave, so as to avoid danger of their communicating the disease. This will apply also to the soldiers now stationed on the government reservation there, and who have been ordered to proceed to Battery Point, Del. Word reached the surgeon general that arrangements had been made for the transportation of these men through the army quartermaster at Philadelphia. They will be taken by boat to Cape Charles and thence by train to their destination. Battery Point is an isolated place, and Dr. Wyman has no fear that the soldiers will carry any infection with them.

The surgeon general continues his precautions to prevent the spread of the disease and is dispatching additional help to the surgeons now on the ground. Dr. Werchenbaker will remain at Newport News for the present and will supervise matters along the line of the railroad between that city and Richmond. Hospital Steward Kolb, who is a yellow fever immune, now at Norfolk, has been directed to report to Dr. White and render what service he may be called on to perform. Dr. White will remain in charge at Hampton, though he is not to visit the home, as his immunity from the disease is doubtful. Surgeon Fricks, now at the South Atlantic quarantine station, has been ordered to Norfolk and Past Assistant Surgeon Stimpson, now at St. Louis, has been directed to report at Old Point. Arrangements have been made for the disinfection of mail matter sent by the inmates of the home to their friends.

Two suspected people who have been at the Hampton home have been detained by the local authorities in this city but they appear to be all right, and no alarm is felt over their presence in Washington.

Fever Breaks Out at Phoebus.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 3.—Yellow fever appeared at Phoebus, a little town almost adjoining Hampton. The scourge appeared among the negroes, and six cases and two deaths were reported. There is no change in the local situation except that the authorities have redoubled their diligence to prevent the fever spreading to this city from Hampton or elsewhere.

STORM IN NEBRASKA.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 3.—A severe storm passed over the northern part of the state last night. The storm is reported to have been more severe south of the town. People were badly frightened, thinking a cyclone was coming. A heavy rain accompanied the wind.

GLAD TO GET BACK

TENTH PENNSYLVANIA ARRIVES AT SAN FRANCISCO.

Homecoming Saddened by the Death of Their Beloved Colonel, Which Occurred at Sea—The Official Reception Committee Not Having Arrived, a Substitute Committee Undertook the Duty of Extending a Welcome to the Pennsylvanians—Will Be Mustered Out at San Francisco.

San Francisco, Aug. 3.—The United States transport Senator arrived last night from Manila with her flag at half-mast on account of the death of Col. Alexander Hawkins, commander of the Tenth Pennsylvania.

The Senator sailed from Manila on July 1 with thirty-eight officers and 721 enlisted men. The transport was at Nagasaki on July 15, when Col. Hawkins was taken ill with cancer of the bowels, from which he had been a sufferer during the greater part of his campaign in the Philippines, and for which he had undergone treatment in the military hospital at Manila. His illness continued during the following day, July 16, when the senator was at Yokohama, and two days later he passed away at sea. Col. Hawkins' illness dated from the battle of Malolos, when he exposed himself almost recklessly in the disease breeding climate. He was respected and loved by every man of his command, and his death is deeply mourned by the troops. After the death of Col. Hawkins the command of the regiment was vested in Lieut. Col. Barnett, who, like the dead commander, is popular among the enlisted men and made a good record in the war.

Of the 759 officers and men whom Col. Barnett brought to San Francisco three are privates in the Sixth artillery, U. S. A., and one is a member of the Nebraska regiment who was left behind at Yokohama when his companions sailed for this port on the Hancock. A dozen stewards were also concealed in the holds and were soon brought to light after the Senator left Yokohama. The Senator had a good trip from Japan with the exception of the sadness over the death of the regimental commander. There was no sickness aboard with the exception of a few cases of seasickness and half a dozen cases of dysentery.

When the Tenth Pennsylvania left San Francisco for the Philippines last year the muster comprised 850 men. Twenty-four were killed in battle or died in the Manila hospital, and the rest of the sick and wounded to the number of seven are in the hospital ship Relief, which will probably arrive here within the next few days.

The quarantine officer boarded the Senator about 7 o'clock, and after a careful inspection passed crew and passengers. The transport had dropped anchor off the Folsom street wharf, and it was decided that the regiment should not be landed until to-day. As the official committee on reception to the regiment will not arrive here from Philadelphia until this evening the substitute committee appointed informally undertook the duty. A tug had been chartered for to-day with the expectation that the Senator would not arrive last night, and arrangements to go out to meet the transport with a band, stacks of flowers and tons of dainties for the soldiers. The premature appearance of the transport last evening, however, did not permit the carrying out of all these plans, but the substitute committee, which came out in advance of the regular committee, hastily embarked and were soon alongside the Senator extending a warm greeting to their fellow Pennsylvanians and welcoming the brave lads back to their native land.

Out of respect to the dead regimental commander there was little cheering or other noisy demonstrations, but the men quietly expressed their delight at the first glimpse of the Golden Gate. Like the Oregon and Nebraska regiments, the Pennsylvania troops, prior to sailing from Manila, voted in favor of being mustered out in San Francisco.

ROOT TAKES HOLD.

He Is Sworn In As Secretary of War.

Washington, Aug. 3.—Mr. Elihu Root took the oath of office as secretary of war at 10:45 yesterday. The ceremony occurred in the large office of the secretary of war, in the presence of Secretaries Gage and Hitchcock, Assistant Secretary McKeljohn, a large number of army officers in uniform, and other employees and officials. The oath was administered by Judge Cole, of the supreme court of the District of Columbia.

Secretary Alger arrived at the war department at 10:40, accompanied by Mr. Root, for whom he had called in his carriage. They went immediately to the secretary's private office, where were Secretaries Gage and Hitchcock, and were soon joined by Adj. Gen. Corbin and Maj. Hopkins, the latter being the military secretary of Secretary Alger. A moment later Assistant Secretary McKeljohn and Judge Cole entered the room, and the judge was formally presented to the new secretary. By this time all of the army officers on duty in the department had gathered in the main office, and Mr. Root and Secretary Alger and other members of the party entered the room. It was 10:45 when Mr. Root stood up and took the oath of office. Judge Cole then addressed him as "Mr. Secretary" and shook hands and congratulated him. Gen. Alger then advanced and shook his hand most cordially, and said, with evident feeling: "With all my heart I congratulate you and the administration. You will find around you here men who will help in the arduous duties of your position. May God bless you and give you strength."

Then the officers were presented to Secretary Root by Victor L. Mason, the confidential secretary of the secretary of war. As soon as they were introduced they passed on and shook hands with Gen. Alger. Nearly all stopped to express their regrets upon his retirement and wish him success in future.

Gen. Miles appeared with his staff in the full dress uniform of the major general commanding the army. He stopped to talk with Secretary Root for some time, longer than any of the others. Following the presentation of the officers, the civilian officers and clerks of the department came in and shook hands with Secretary Root and said farewell to Gen. Alger, shook him cordially by the hand, bidding him good by. Gen. Alger left at 12:45 for his home in Detroit.

The democratic party is like the "dog that bays at the moon." It doesn't know what the moon is and it doesn't know why it bays. The democratic party doesn't know what constitutes the sun of prosperity, nor why it howls when that sun is shining, says the Edgely Mail.

The Labor Day Association of this city is already busy preparing for the annual celebration. The programme this year will be more elaborate than last, if possible, and the general public should put their shoulder to the wheel and help make it a hummer. Sept. 4th is the date.

THE accounts which come from various sources of the terrible famine now raging in the eastern provinces of Russia show a very distressing and fearful state of affairs. The lack of crops in Russia, caused by the long-continued drouth, has affected an immense tract of land, and millions of peasants are, in consequence, in a most distressing condition. They are literally dying by thousands. Typhoid fever in its worst form, as well as scurvy, both the natural results of bad and insufficient food, are devastating the land.

GOVERNOR LIND, and his general manager, A. L. Rosing, after much worry, succeeded in displacing Chief Grain Inspector Clausen, the latter gentleman having resigned soon after his re-election owing to the hostility of the chief executive of the state. There would be nothing to regret in the appointment of a populist to this position, if it were not for the fact that an inexperienced man at the head of a new grain inspection force will naturally raise havoc with the Minnesota grades, for there are very few republicans but who would be glad to see Lind fill all the offices now occupied by holdovers. Lind's action in this grain inspection matter will be a serious stumbling block to him during the next campaign.

Beaten by Brainerd.

The Little Falls Transcript evidently doesn't admire the conduct of its base ball team, and offers them the following advice in its Monday issue:

"The Little Falls base ball club played ball at Brainerd Sunday. At the close of the game the score stood 14 to 4 in favor of Brainerd. Through out the entire game the playing was none too good. The ground was rough, making things uncertain. The fourth, fifth and sixth innings were whitewashes for both teams. Most of Brainerd's scores were made during the latter innings. Brainerd is demonstrating the fact that their playing is superior to that of our boys. Perhaps if some of the members of the home team would have a little more respect for their physical condition on the eve of a game they would be able to put up some kind of a stand."

In a later issue the Transcript says:

"There is a rupture in the Little Falls base ball club. Captain Newman and Shortstop Cornell have resigned. Gravel has been elected captain. Changes are to be made in the positions played by the members of the club."

Mrs. Conselyea Located.

The land office at St. Cloud on Tuesday received a letter from W. A. Conselyea, of the quartermaster's department of the United States army at Mariano, Cuba, in which he says his wife is there. She is the woman who it is alleged stole $1,200 in money orders from the Vineland (Mille Laes county) postoffice and decamped. Joseph Collins is her father and he was the postmaster. His bondsmen had to make good the amount and they will go after Mrs. Conselyea. The husband has a piece of land in this land office district.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin"

never grows old. There runs through it a vein of pathos peculiarly touching and sweet. It speaks the universal language of the heart. It reflects like a prison the innermost phases of the human emotion. It is more than a play. It is a moral classic. It argues for two of the greatest themes that can engage the mind; human liberty and the immortality of the soul. Notwithstanding its frequent production, it is seldom that one sees the play as it is now presented by Davis & Busby's colossal spectacular company. It is like meeting an old friend after many years. The management doubtless believes in the maxim, "What's worth doing is worth doing well." They have brought together in this production all the requisites that go to make up a first-class entertainment.

Davis & Busby's spectacular Uncle Tom's Cabin Co. will appear at Brainerd on Wednesday, Aug. 9th, under a big tent.

All persons found unlawfully upon them will be dealt with as actual trespassers and intruders. This notice is meant to set at rest persistent reports that the whole country is to be opened to settlement.

DON'T GO IT BLIND.

There's No Need To In Brainerd—The Way Is Almost Hedged With Guide Posts.

Have you ever read a newspaper article, a glowing account of some incident told in elusive words to lead you on and found it ended up with a proprietary medicine advertisement? Made you mad, didn't you? And were you convinced of the merit of the article? We think not, because it told of the experience of some stranger in a far away town. To take his word for it was like going it blind. It's a very different thing when a statement is prescribed from a citizen, from people we know, and that is the case here.

Mrs. C. Dressen, of Seventh street south, says: "When I commenced taking Doan's Kidney Pills I was suffering very severely with a lame back. I had this complaint by spells and at such time it was exceedingly painful for me to bend my back, say to put a stick of wood in the fire, for the stooping and straightening caused severe twinges. This was my condition when I saw Doan's Kidney Pills so highly recommended that I procured a box and used it. This was some time ago, but my back is well and has never given me any trouble since. I think Doan's Kidney Pills a splendid medicine for such complaints."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute. For sale by the McFadden Drug Co., and Johnson's Pharmacy.

Warning to Farmers.
 As I am reliably informed that some foul-mouthed cheap hirelings of competing machine firms are going around the farming country and endeavoring to sell machines by telling falsehoods in regard to the Deering Ideal Harvesters and Binders which I represent, I call attention to the same and warn the unsuspecting farmers of such men, who would do better as scavengers than to try and ply the machine trade with the help of lies. The Deering Ideal Mowers, Harvesters and Binders are as much superior to those competing machines as electric lights are to the old fashioned candle dip.
 Farmers, if you want a machine you can depend on buy the "Deering," reliable and good, at HESSEL'S,
 corner of Fourth and Front streets.

REMARKABLE EXPERIMENTS.

How Various Human Emotions May Be Recorded by Delicate Mechanical Devices.

Parents, teachers and lovers of children generally will be greatly interested in the results of an experimental study of no less than twenty-two thousand school boys and school girls, white and colored, just completed by the United States Bureau of Education. It has been a monster undertaking, requiring several years, as is shown by the first detailed account of the work.

All of the youthful subjects if grouped together would equal in number the men in the ranks of our standing army at the outbreak of the last war. The object of the investigation was to discover the relationship between parentage, surroundings, nationality, stature, weight, size and shape of head and other conditions and the conduct, intellect and health of children at different ages. Almost all of the subjects were selected from the public schools of Washington, the transient population of which includes nearly all American and foreign types of childhood.

For the case of each child was issued a blank calling for as many as 107 details, covering all facts and characteristics to be considered. All these data were collected by teachers in the various schools, under the direction of Dr. Arthur Macdonald, well known as an anthropologist, who personally examined cases demanding the use of instruments of precision.

Of such instruments, devised entirely for measurements of man, the Bureau has one of the most elaborate collections in existence. They automatically measure the relative acuteness of the senses, sensitiveness to pain and other stimuli, and the dimensions and motions of external parts of the body, besides keeping strict account of the changes in breathing and the distribution of the blood circulation under different conditions.

The extravagant theories of pseudo-scientists of the spectacular schools of phrenology must be abandoned for conclusions reached by such thorough work as this. No attempt was made to study the bumps of the youthful heads, yet the general dimensions of the cranium were carefully considered. One of the most interesting deductions is that broad-headed children appear to be brighter than long-headed children, the length of the head being measured from front to back of the cranium.

In estimating whether each head was broad, medium or long a simple formula was applied. The maximum width was always multiplied by 100 and divided by the maximum length. When the resulting numeral was 75 or dull ones in standing height, sitting height and weight. A surprising discovery was that the children of the laboring classes, whose parents daily exercise their bodies, have a much smaller average for length of body and limb as well as for weight than those whose parents belong to the non-laboring classes and who gain their living mostly by mind work.

Another interesting conclusion arrived at is that a mixture of nationalities in the parents seems to result unfavorably to the mental development of the child. The result appears to be a reduction in the circumference of the head. Children of mixed nationalities were also inferior in weight, on an average.

Colored and white children were compared. The percentage of long-headedness, appearing to indicate dullness when comparisons are made among children of the same race, was found to be twice as great among colored as among white boys, but this is believed to be due largely to the racial differences. Colored girls' heads seemed to be larger around than those of colored boys, the reverse of the rule with white children and to be shorter in stature although heavier in weight. The colored children were also found to be much the more acute in distinguishing temperatures.

The marks of "dull" and "bright" affixed by the teachers led to some further conclusions of great interest. Girls showed higher percentages of "average ability" than boys, but the boys showed the higher percentages in extremes. The boys were found to be more variable. Variability, the anthropologist says, must be regarded as an excellency. If an organism can vary itself it can adapt itself better to its surroundings. Children of the laboring classes were found to be inferior in their studies to those of the non-laboring classes.

An algometer was used upon the temples and palms of the hands to determine the least sensibility of different children to pain or to disagreeable impressions caused by pressure. The instrument is a brass cylinder with a steel rod entering one end. The rod is attached inside to a spring with a scale and marker measuring the degrees of pressure in grammes. The object was to discover how much pressure could be borne before the least pain resulted. Girls were found to be much more sensitive than boys, and girls in the public schools showed less sensitiveness than those in the private schools.

It was concluded that in boys sensitiveness to pain decreases in the or-the refinements of life is indicated by the highest average for this defect in the white children of non-laboring classes and the lowest average in colored children.

When blood is reduced by thought, exercise or other stimulus to flow from one part of the body to the brain or to another part Dr. Macdonald measures the extent of flow by submerging the part in question—as an arm, for instance—through an airtight rubber dam into a glass vessel of water. As the blood decreases the amount of air between the water and the rubber increases and the increase is measured by a pointer. Quite as sensitive are a score of instruments for measuring movements of muscles. One can be clasped above any muscle or the body for this purpose.

Another records the breathing, and with it it has been learned that concentration of mind causes respiration to grow less and a consequent impoverishment of the blood. Still another records the exact movements of the fingers and toes. Another measures and counts nervous tremblings and still another the sensitiveness to fatigue. Others gauge the pressure and movements of the tongue in speech or nervousness. A still more delicate device registers the exact motions of the lips in talking.

The actions of the larynx—Adam's apple—are similarly studied. To study the wiggings of the soft palate in

Yes, and the photographic marvels so lately put upon the bourgeois market—groups of white-draped figures holding lyres or trumpets or other pseudo-Hellenic symbols—these, to elicit our admiration. But chiefest is that shoddy Madonna. M. Charles Blanc says that the test of artistic appreciation is to behold Raphael's Stance; if you weep, there is hope for you; if you don't, why, eat, drink and be merry—tomorrow you die. Clearly, then, M. Charles Blanc had never seen the Bodenhausen Madonna reproduced on glass, with a prop to stand up by. That, thinks Sweet Auburn, is the ultimate

TACKLED A BIG TIGER

PLUCKY FIGHT THAT LASTED A WEEK.

Bull Dog Was Pretty Badly Mauled, and All the Money in India Couldn't Buy It Now—A Continuous Performance on Outskirts of Jalna.

Tigers are not so common in India now as they used to be years ago, and so when a big man eater was discovered recently in a garden in the outskirts of Jalna, next to a lawn on which several men and women were playing tennis, there naturally was a big panic and a great scampering to places of safety.

Capt. R. G. Burton of the English army is stationed at Jalna, and he was enjoying a siesta when one of his house servants ran in with the news that a man-eater had just entered the compound of an empty bungalow near by. Capt. Burton, with a friend and some native servants, started out to slay the beast. A bull terrier, pet of the captain, followed, and when they got to the compound the terrier made a rush into a big patch of jungle grass there and began barking furiously. Fearing that his pet would be torn to pieces, the captain called the terrier to come back. The dog paid no attention to the summons, but continued to dart about in the grass, snapping and snarling at the intruder.

To the surprise of the whole party the tiger turned tail and fled from the dog, but on reaching the open the beast sprang upon one of the captain's native servants and disemboweled him with one sweep of a monster paw. Before they could open fire upon it the tiger had cleared a hedge, crossed the tennis ground to the accompaniment of a wild chorus of shrieks as the players fled in dismay, and hid among the bushes in a garden adjoining the court. By this time a dozen other men armed with rifles had joined in the chase.

The bull terrier had stuck close to the heels of the man-eater, and by his barking directed them to the beast's new hiding place. Again the dog bearded the tiger, but this time at some distress to itself, for it came darting out of the bushes with blood streaming from a long cut in its side made by the tiger's claws. The terrier pluckily returned to the attack, however, and as before the tiger fled from it. As it darted into the open with the terrier at its heels, every man in the party opened fire, wounding the beast severely. It managed to get into a small jungle, however, and as by this time it had fallen dark and as it was believed the tiger's wounds would prevent its escape, the chase was abandoned until morning. It was with the greatest difficulty that the terrier was induced to leave the spot.

At daylight it was found that the tiger had made its escape. That it had been severely wounded was shown by a big pool of blood in the jungle where it had sought refuge. Capt. Burton determined to have the beast's skin, and, accompanied only by the bull terrier, he set out on a hunt for the tiger.

On the fifth day, when he had just decided to abandon the chase, he was appealed to by some natives in a village about ten miles from Jalna to rid them of a tiger that had seized and mauled a man that day. It proved to be the Jalna tiger, with a broken leg. The captain organized a party, and with the bull terrier to scent the trail, they started out to track the tiger down.

That same afternoon the terrier drove the tiger out of some thick cover into a clump of bushes, and then followed into the bushes and closed with it. The hunters could hear a terrific combat going on, but could not see a thing. Presently the snarling and snapping and rushing around in the bush came to an end, and the hunters were convinced that the plucky dog had been killed.

While they were holding a council to determine how to get the tiger out where they could shoot it, the terrier crawled out to them. The gallant little fellow was covered with cuts and blood. Capt. Burton washed the blood off with water from a canteen and gave him a drink. Then before they could stop it the dog darted back into the bushes and renewed the battle.

This attack was short, however, for the dog was exhausted. Capt. Burton decided that the only way to keep the tiger from killing his pet was to go into the bush after it, and he crept in, while the beast was in the act of striking the terrier, he took a snap shot that brought the man-eater down on the instant. It was a lucky shot, the ball having entered the tiger's brain through the ear. The bull terrier was cut up so badly that it was unable to move, but it recovered from its hurts, and Capt. Burton now says there isn't money enough in India to buy the dog.

A Country with One Policeman.

There is one country in the world, and probably only one, that gets along with a single policeman, and that is Iceland. Iceland is peopled by the descendants of Vikings, including many famous warriors and heroes, but they are so law-abiding that they have no need of policemen. The solitary officer, in spite of his great responsibility, has an easy time. He is maintained more for ornament and dignity than for use. The Icelanders think it would not do to have a capital without a policeman, and so they keep one. This police force is large in one sense. Its member is six feet high, broad-shouldered, and handsomely uniformed. Green Bag.

less the subject was registered as long-headed, when between 75 and 80 he was medium and between 80 and 85 he was broad-headed.

Another interesting deduction is that the child with a large head is apt to be more intelligent than the one whose cranium is small. Diagrams made from the statistics show that as the circumference of the skull increases so does mental ability. Children of laborers were found to have smaller heads than those whose parents work with their brains rather than with their bodies. Of all his measurements the anthropologist says he attaches most importance to those of the head. Defects of the cranium, says he, are probably more significant than those of other parts, and in general the nearer a bodily defect is to the brain the more important it is.

Can any relationship exist between a child's height or weight and his mental ability? was another question. The bright boys were found to excel the der of their birth, whether first born, second born, etc., but the reverse seemed to be the case with girls. Boys with light hair and eyes were found to be less sensitive than boys with dark hair and eyes, the same being true of girls. Bright boys and girls at the same time appear to be more sensitive than dull boys and girls. Dr. Macdonald is of the opinion that luxuries and refinement increase this sensitiveness in people in general.

Children of the non-laboring classes were found to be twice as sickly as those of the laboring classes. The highest percentage of laziness and of unruliness was found among boys designated as dull. Boys showed a higher laziness average than girls. The sons of laborers were found less unruly than those of non-laboring classes. The reverse was the rule with girls. Convulsions were frequent in dull boys and those of non-laboring classes, but very rare in girls generally. That nervousness increases with

Frozen Heart,

A THRILLING LOVE STORY.

BY FRANCES WARNER WALKER.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

It was a scene awful in its solemnity. Her voice died away in the silence. The water rippled over the stones at their feet as its echo. The leaves rustled overhead. A bird sleepily sang its good-night to its mate. And beneath the tree stood the lovely vision whose words rendered her own self-condemnation.

She looked scarce like a living woman. Yet her pallor and her pitiless self-scouring lent her beauty.

Lord Montfort was the first to speak. "I do not believe it," he said; but his voice was the voice of an old man, and all his youth seemed suddenly to have fled. "It is false to save his life!" and he looked toward Arkwright.

"No, it is true," she answered. "Look at me well, Lord Montfort, now, when my eyes do not seek to beguile you nor my lips to smile, and you will see I am not Dorothy—not the wife whom you married—which, alas, you must still mourn as dead—but her sister, twin in all outer semblance, though not in inner likeness. In soul, in heart, Dorothy was beautiful as in face. Ought I to ask your pardon? You must not grant it. And it is his pardon I should seek—his whose lips were sealed this morning when you taxed him with dishonor in the moment of his highest manhood. Yet his forgiveness, too, is past. But will you not sometimes remember that I, myself, stripped the mask from my face? I might have worn it even to the end; but thank God—thank God, He gave me strength! Lord Montfort, these—these are the diamonds your mother gave me. Take them, please—and tell her—"

She swayed a moment, then tottered forward. Her eyes turned toward Arkwright; in them the shadow of her renunciation and the glow of her awakened heart—the fire his heart had kindled.

"Harry" came in a low, faint whisper from her lips. And then she sank in a merciful unconsciousness, upon the green, velvety sward.

Arkwright sprang forward. Lord Montfort stood still.

"Carry her to the house," he said. "I cannot touch her; and see that, as yet, my mother knows nothing. It will kill her!"

The last word died in a sob, and, plunging in among the bushes, he was soon lost to sight amid the dense foliage. It seemed to him that the grave of his young wife had been rent open by sacrilegious hands, and all that was holiest in his heart exposed to a mocking gaze.

Arkwright and Florence were alone; but the long lashes lay like a heavy fringe upon her cheek, and only the faint, fluttering breath between her half-parted lips showed that life was not extinct.

He lifted her in his arms as once he had done before, and carried her to the house. Happily, he met no one. Lady Montfort was in her own room, so, summoning her maid to her assistance, he mounted a horse and hastened in quest of a physician.

As he laid her upon the bed she had opened her eyes; and no consciousness was in their expression, and he felt that the long strain had given way at last.

"Say nothing to my mother," had been Lord Mortimer's injunction; but how could the truth be kept from her? This was the problem perplexing him as he rode back to the castle. For himself, only an infinite pity mingled with the love which was the master-passion of his life. Cruel as had been the perverting of her own nature, so cruel had been the causes which had led to it. He held them, not her, responsible.

We do not blame the madman for his acts. We have compassion for his madness.

So Arkwright felt that Florence had indeed been driven to the verge of madness; but the mists had scattered from her brain—the ice at her heart had melted.

With her reason had returned her womanhood. He heard again her low-voiced utterance of his name with her last conscious breath, and baring his head in the night air, he prayed that her life might be spared, and that it might be given to him to wipe out the past in the future, which, by God's help should be shadowed by no cloud.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

As he entered the castle and passed hurriedly through the hall, a voice called his name.

He turned, when, from one of the smaller rooms, a man advanced to meet him.

"Mr. Strong!" he exclaimed, in some surprise.

And he saw that the lawyer's face was ghastly and his strong frame trembling.

"I have just sent for Lord Herbert, and they say he is not in the house. I—I—This is a terrible business, Mr. Arkwright. Do they suspect anything here? At any moment Lady Montfort may appear, and I fear the shock of what I have to tell will kill her."

"The shock! What do you mean? How have you learned the truth?"

"I saw Louis Gervase this morning—"

"And you believed his story?"

"In part, yes. But truth is stranger indeed, than fiction, and the role which the so-called Lady Montfort has been playing has been made reality. The true aspirant to the title is here, within this very room. Herbert's wife has risen, indeed, from the dead!"

Arkwright fairly staggered as he listened.

"Thank God! thank God!" he murmured, while tears sprang unbidden to his eyes.

had been appointed. Of the tragedy which had been enacted within the castle walls, there must be no suspicion beyond them; so, while Florence waged her war with death, Dorothy, with a heart saddened by her sister's peril—a peril which wiped out all blame or censure of the past—bedecked herself again as a bride in the robes made ready for her.

The solemn words had once again been spoken, the marriage vows again been registered, when, as leaning on her husband's arm, they swept down the aisle, a figure, hideous and mocking, confronted them, with a low, malicious laugh.

Dorothy shrank back with a cry of terror. Her husband stepped before her to protect her.

"I wish to tell you your marriage is not legal, Lord Montfort," said Gervase. "The woman you have just married is my lawful wife! I thought I would let the farce go to the end, in order to make my triumph more complete. I told her once that when she held to her lips the cup, I would dash it down. She has never suspected the truth. It was not my purpose that she should, but, in reality, I married her by a special dispensation of the church, and the marriage would hold good in any court of law. I knew when I proposed to marry the countess she would never assert her claim, and I had represented my wife as dead. Now, I wish her to return to me. Already I have made confession to the church, and received its pardon. The law compels a wife to obey her husband. Florence Gervase, drop that man's arm, and follow me."

The speaker's face was livid. He was laboring under an excitement painful to look upon. He appeared almost on the verge of madness. Step by step, he had attained the pinnacle of his triumph, and reached the summit of his vengeance.

Lord Montfort had made no interruption in the hot torrent of his words. Though very pale, he held himself in check, and now said, quietly:

"Sir, you will permit myself and wife to pass, else I shall have you thrust from my path."

The purple blood flew to his face, rendering more hideous still his undisguised hideousness. He stretched out his hand to grasp Lady Montfort's arm, but, with a quick blow, her husband dashed it down.

"Madman!" he exclaimed. "Look at this lady, and satisfy yourself that it is not the woman whom you render pitiful now by giving her at last the name you have disgraced! Study every feature, and then never again let your gaze pollute her. Ah, you are convinced!"

For, as his eyes obeyed Lord Montfort's command, an awful change swept over him.

The sword he had held against another's heart had been turned into his own. He staggered back, and the bridal party swept on. He was alone in the chapel, barked of his vengeance and his victory—maddened, desperate.

A few minutes later a shot startled those outside. When they hastened in, they found him bathed in his life-blood.

In that sacred place, he had defied God, as he had long defied man, and sent his soul, more scarred than his own boasted beauty, into the silence of eternity.

A REMARKABLE FEAT

ANIMAL NERVES GRAFTED TO MAN'S.

Interesting Instances of This Transplantation—Out of a Score of Recorded Cases No One, However, Recovered Entirely.

In a certain proportion of cases of injuries to nerves the ends cannot be brought together and a portion of nerve obtained from one of the lower animals or from an amputated limb has been implanted. Dr. R. Peterson contributed an important article on transplantation of nerves to the American Journal of the Medical Sciences which contains an original case and an analysis of the small number of previously recorded cases. A man, aged 24, was severely injured in the right wrist by a circular saw. The ulnar artery and flexor tendons were severed. The latter were immediately sutured. He lost sensibility in the hand and later there were trophic changes—glossy skin, corrugated nails and ulceration of the skin, and marked atrophy of the small muscles. Five months after the injury the divided ends of the median nerve were exposed. They were found to be united by connective tissue. The proximal end formed a hard bulb. The connective tissue and the bulb were removed, leaving a gap. So much force was required to bring together the cut ends that transplantation of nerve was decided upon. Four centimetres of the sciatic nerve of a young black hound were sutured between the ends with a kangaroo tendon. A similar operation was performed on the ulnar nerve. On the following day distinct return of sensibility in the thumb was found; the fingers could not be tested without disturbing the bandage. Two months after the operation the skin had lost its shiny look and appeared normal and the muscles, though still atrophied, were regaining power. A month later sensibility was complete except on the dorsal surface of the third phalanges of the second, third and fourth fingers. The only anaesthetic areas on the palm aspect were on the second and third phalanges of the third and fourth fingers and on the third phalanx of the second finger. There are twenty recorded cases of transplantation of nerves. The median nerve was operated on in seven cases, the ulnar in three, the median and ulnar nerves in two, the musculo-spiral nerve in seven, and the sciatic in one. There were eight primary and twelve secondary operations. The time from the injury to the operation varied from forty-eight hours to one and a quarter years. Eight out of the twelve cases of secondary operation showed improvement in sensibility or motion, while only four out of the eight cases of primary operation improved. The interval between the ends of the divided nerves varied from three to ten centimetres, but distance did not seem to affect the result. In nine cases the transplanted segments were from the sciatic nerves of dogs, in three from rabbits, in one from a kitten, in one from the spinal cord of a rabbit, and in five from recently amputated limbs. In one case an inch of the sciatic nerve which had been excised was itself transplanted. In nine cases catgut was used to unite the implanted segments to the divided ends, in three silk, and in one kangaroo tendon. No case recovered entirely. The nearest approach to complete recovery took place in the case longest under observation, in which at the end of six years sensibility had entirely returned and the only weak muscle was the abductor pollicis. In three cases there was practical recovery of sensibility and motion and the hand was useful. Sensibility completely returned in four cases, nearly completely in three cases, and was improved in four cases. There was improvement in either motion or sensibility in twelve cases, and no improvement in either in six cases. The average time in which sensibility appeared after the operation was about ten days; motion returned in about two and a half months.

A Snoring Premier.

From the Sydney Telegraph: During the all-night sitting of the New South Wales legislative assembly this week the premier, Mr. Reid, spent a large part of the night in slumber on the opposition benches. The incident did not escape notice, as the rotund attitude of the sleepy premier and his nasal performances compelled attention from all parts of the house. Eventually it was satirically demanded why the leader of the government should persist in remaining on the opposition side of the house. Mr. Barton promptly and wittily defended his new colleague by asking: "Why should he not be there? Is he not now my sleeping partner?"

None of His Business.

A story illustrating the reticence of the Scotch regarding their private affairs was told by Ian Maclaren when in Boston. A train was at a railroad station, when a porter put his head into a car and called out: "Any one in this car for Doun? Change for Doun? Any one for Doun?" No one moved, and in a few minutes the train was speeding along, not to stop again for nearly an hour. Then an old Scotchwoman turned to a lady sitting near her, and said: "I'm for Doun, but I'd no tell that man so."—Youth's Companion.

SAVED BY MRS. PINKHAM.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 72,896]

"You have saved my life, snatched me from the brink of the grave almost, and I wish to thank you. About eighteen months ago I was a total wreck, physically. I had been troubled with leucorrhoea for some time, but had given hardly any attention to the trouble."

"At last inflammation of the womb and ovaries resulted and then I suffered agonies, had to give up my profession (musician and piano player), was confined to my bed and life became a terrible cross. My husband summoned the best physicians, but their benefit was but temporary at best. I believe I should have contracted the morphine habit under their care, if my common sense had not intervened."

"One day my husband noticed the advertisement of your remedies and immediately bought me a full trial. Soon the pain in my ovaries was gone. I am now well, strong and robust, walk, ride a wheel, and feel like a girl in her teens. I would not be without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it is like water of life to me. I am very gratefully and sincerely your well-wisher, and I heartily recommend your remedies. I hope some poor creature may be helped to health by reading my story."—MRS. COL. E. P. RICHARDSON, RHINELANDER, WIS.

Does Your Head Ache?

Are your nerves weak? Can't you sleep well? Pain in your back? Lack energy? Appetite poor? Digestion bad? Boils or pimples? These are sure signs of poisoning.

From what poisons? From poisons that are always found in constipated bowels.

If the contents of the bowels are not removed from the body each day, as nature intended, these poisonous substances are sure to be absorbed into the blood, always causing suffering and frequently causing severe disease.

There is a common sense cure.

A PAIR OF HANDS AND A PAIR OF HORSES

Are all that are required to operate a Deering Corn Binder.

The Deering Corn Binder affords the best plan for harvesting corn with economy and expedition.

The Deering Corn Binder alone handles corn on the practical, horizontal principle, as a grain binder handles grain.

The Deering Corn Binder has a built-in adjuster with great scope of adjustment for handling long or short corn.

The Deering Corn Binder has rollers and bearings and less draft and neck weight than other corn binders made.

The farmer who gets his corn from field to shock or pile with the smallest outlay of time, and with the services of only a Pair of Hands and a Pair of Horses is the farmer with a Deering Corn Binder.

MATRIMONIAL.

On Wednesday evening, August 2nd, 1899, Mr. Edwin C. Bane and Miss Lurline Cale, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Cale, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. G. W. Gallagher, of the First Congregational church conducting the ceremony. The wedding was quite an elaborate affair, over 200 invitations having been issued, and the spacious parlors were thronged with invited guests. The reception room and parlors were tastefully decorated with potted plants and cut flowers, and streamers of white, pink and light green ribbons and festoons of smilax.

Shortly after eight o'clock Dresskell's Orchestra rendered the wedding march and the bridal party soon appeared preceded by the ribbon girls and cushion bearer and followed by the pages. Erma Johnson and Ruth Wieland acted as ribbon girls, Lurline Gutzler as cushion bearer, and Frankie Johnson and Phillip Gutzler as pages. Miss Minnie Chase was bridesmaid, and the groom was attended by Frank B. Johnson. The bride was attired in a magnificent white silk dress with pearl trimmings, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The bridesmaid's dress was white dotted Swiss trimmed with pink satin and pink satin ribbon, and she carried a bouquet of pink roses. The wedding service was conducted by Rev. Gallagher, the bride's father giving the bride away. After the ceremony the newly wedded couple received the congratulations of the assembled guests, when an elaborate wedding supper was served. The dining room was decorated with golden rods and the table decorations were pink roses and carnations.

The happy couple left on the midnight train on a wedding trip to Chicago and other eastern points, but will make their home in this city on their return in a few days.

Both of the contracting parties are well and favorably known in this community. The groom is one of Brainerd's most enterprising young business men, having conducted a meat market business here, and has the respect and confidence of all. The bride who has resided here from childhood, is a highly educated and accomplished young lady and possessed of those traits of mind and heart that makes her beloved by all her acquaintances. They have the best wishes of their hosts of friends in their new relation.
